Dr. R. M. Wilson to Leave Soon, Writes Farewell Message

Native Hempstead Son to Resume Work in Leper Colony

WILL LEAVE AUG. 12

Besides Mrs. Wilson, He Will Be Accompanied to Korea by Son

Dr. R. M. Wilson, native of Columbus, Arkansas, who has been visiting with relatives and friends for the past several months, will leave August 12 for Korea where he will resume his work in the leper colony there.

He has been engaged in the work for nearly 30 years. In a letter received by The Star Monday from him at Mission Court, Ginter Park, Richmond, Va., he wrote:

"Dear Friends:

"The time is on us to turn our faces once again toward the Far East of Asia to the work in which we have been engaged for almost 30 years and which we love. I wish to send this word of greeting and farewell to you, one and all, and tell you what a joy it has been to visit so many of the churches and to meet so many good friends, renewing the fellowship with the old friends and making acquaintance with the new ones. It is quite impossible for you to know what your friendship, prayers and interest mean to us away over on the yonder side of the world. The work in the mission fields becomes increasingly difficult because of the problems that are constantly arising that are hard to solve; and they will be increased if we may judge by the heavy political clouds that are now arising and darkening the horizon.

"It has never been so hard before for us to return to the field as we are leaving six of our seven children in the homeland in various schools. Our third son, Robert M., Jr., will accompany us back to Korea to help in the work, and he will be plenty to keep him busy in the Leper Colony. He, doing the secretarial and office work will give me more time for the directly evangelistic part in the surrounding villages. He goes with no guaranteed salary but on faith believing that his experience can be that of Paul the Apostle when he said: "My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

Hearts Are Heavy

"These last days we are in a sort of a flurry packing trunks and freight boxes and getting them off a little ahead of us so that we will meet with them again at Japan and reship to Korea. These return preparations are a mixture of joys and tears, joy at the anticipation of getting back into harness again and tears at the thought of the separation, the first time for some of the children; but having at least one of them to go back with us will make it a bit easier.

"A furlough is a strenuous time for us for there is so much we want to do and the time for doing it is so limited. We had a busy week during which our eldest boy, James, graduated in Medicine from Duke University in North Carolina on June 8, and baby boy, Joe, from Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond on June 9, and then James married a fine girl, a nurse in Stuart Circle Hospital in Richmond, on June 10, and, of course, we had to attend all these functions, and it made us almost dizzy whirling from one to another with little breathing space between. James and his bride set out for Detroit, Mich., where he has secured an internship in Henry Ford's hospital and Edna will be a nurse. We are glad to have a new daughter added to our family circle, giving us three.

"Next autumn John, Edwin and Joe will be students at Davidson College; Elizabeth will return for her last year at the Westminster Music School at Princeton, N. J.; and Mary Stuart will be in Richmond continuing her technician training with Dr. Wyndham Blanton, making her home with Dr. and Mrs. Blanton, Sr., who have offered her their kind care as foster-parents. So we have lots to be grateful for, have we not?"

Visits In Louisiana

"In April I visited the leper colony at Carrville, La., and it is good to see what excellent care the Government is giving to those unfortunate. Dr. Haseltine, in charge, is as kind and gentle as can be with them and I know of no place in the world where lepers receive more consideration and sympathy. Each one has his own private room and bath and there are almost half as many nurses as there are patients. There are about half the number of lepers there as in our colony in Korea.

"The disease affects them far worse here than in the Orient. Possibly that may be because an American cannot bear the torture of the disease as well as the Oriental who is not so nervous and mentally high strung. The American victim is more given to brooding over his condition and the fact of having nothing to occupy

Fears Reporters But Not Outlaws

"I'd rather face them again than all them newspaper fellows," fearless James E. Denton, above, insists after a mass interview in New York about his exploit of killing Fred Tindol and capturing "Pete" Traxler, Oklahoma outlaws who had abducted him. He came from Asher, Okla., sans coat or tie, to take part in a broadcast.

Two Open Bolls of Cotton Displayed

Bolls Are Brought From Farm of Mrs. E. G. Slaybaugh

Two fully-opened cotton bolls were brought to Hope Monday from the farm of Mrs. E. G. Slaybaugh of Rocky Mount. The cotton was grown by Sam Scott, negro tenant.

It was planted in April and is of the Rowden variety. Mrs. Slaybaugh said the bolls were pulled Friday afternoon, but that she had delayed in bringing the bolls to town.

They were the first fully-opened bolls to be displayed in Hope this season.

Truck Carrying 28 Passengers Collides With Car at Nashville

NASHVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Nine persons were injured here Sunday night when an automobile collided with a truck carrying 28 passengers from Hope to Murfreesboro.

The automobile, driven by a man named Lambert, was carrying a patient to a Hope hospital for an emergency operation when the accident occurred. No one in the automobile was injured and it continued on to Hope.

Most seriously injured of the truck passengers were LeRoy Womack, about 23, who received a fractured skull and internal injuries, and Mrs. Herman Womack, head and possibly internal injuries.

The truck passengers were returning to their homes from Hope where they had attended a baseball game.

None of the passengers in the automobile were injured.

All the passengers riding in the truck were taken to a Nashville hospital where they were treated for injuries.

They were returning to their home at Murfreesboro from Hope where they attended the Hope-Murfreesboro ball game at Fair park Sunday afternoon.

Life's A Bed of Roses For War Lord of 1914

By J. A. HOUMAN

DOORN, Holland.—(AP)—Twenty-three years ago August 1 Germany declared war on Russia and Wilhelm II signed the general mobilization order.

The next day German troops invaded France.

Today the man who was accused of plunging the world into battle sits on a knoll of his 50-acre estate here, absorbed in roses.

Once attended by generals and ministers, today he is accompanied by a soft-eyed dechendant.

Mustache Miracles No More

The bristling mustache to which he gave his name is gray. It bristles no more but its tips still point skyward. A gray beard covers his once-arrogant chin. His stern face has softened, grown more angular.

The world was at his throat when the abdicated monarch fled to Holland 19 years ago. He found shelter with friends and Holland protected him. In 1920 he bought his 50-acre domain in Doorn.

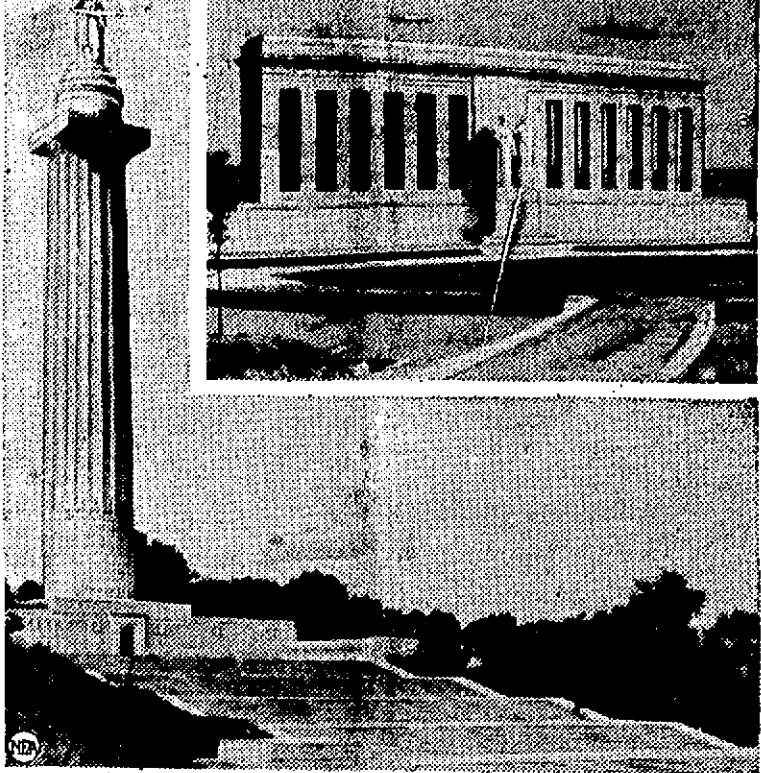

Seventeen years have drawn the hatred. Now, at 78, the ex-Kaiser seems a handsome gentleman of the old school. His personal sorrows—the suicide of his youngest son, Prince Joachim, soon after the war, the death of the former kaiser in 1921—have been forgotten.

He sits amid his roses courteously acknowledging respectful salutes from promenaders.

Public Is Admitted

The ex-Kaiser has been alone part of this summer. His consort, the business-like Kaiserin Hermine, whom he married in 1922, went to super vise her properties in Germany. None of the children of her former marriage were there when an Associated Press correspondent visited Doorn recently. At one side of the ex-Kaiser's room is a slight eminence. Although the garden is open to those of the public who get tickets of admission from the stern-visaged Dutch gendarme at Simple but impressive ceremonies will mark the dedication of America's greatest World War memorial at Montfaucon, France, Sunday, Aug. 1, in the presence of Gen. John J. Pershing, when the towering monument shown above is commemorated to the million American doughboys who served in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. It was designed by John Russell Pope of New York and erected at a cost of nearly a half million dollars. Inset is shown another in the series of American war memorials being dedicated between August and October. It marks the spot where American forces stopped the German advance at Chateau Thierry in July, 1918, and was designed by Dr. Paul P. Cret of Philadelphia.

Roosevelt Gives Memorial Address

Proclaims Friendship for France in Dedication of Monument

QUANTICO, Va.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, Sunday, proclaimed anew America's historic friendship for France which he said finds its expression in their common devotion to the idea of democracy.

His speech—made from a yacht in the Potomac river—was sent by radio to distant Montfaucon, France, on the occasion of the dedication of the American battle monument there to commemorate the victory of the American first army in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Recalling the re-creation of France's regions which were devastated in the World war, the president said:

"To the preservation of this civilization American soldiers and sailors contributed their lives and lie buried on this and other battle fields. They died brothers-in-arms with Frenchmen, and in their passing America and France gained deeper devotion to the ideal of democracy.

"In their name, for their sake, I pray God no hazard of the future may ever dissipate or destroy that common ideal. I greet the Republic of France, firm in the confidence that a friendship as old as the American nation will never be suffered to grow less.

Stressing the common democratic aims of the two countries, President Roosevelt continued:

"Though the seas divide us, the people of France and the people of the United States find union today in common devotion to the ideal which the memorial at Montfaucon symbolizes. That ideal, to which both nations bear faithful witness, is the ideal of freedom under democracy—liberty attained by government founded in democratic institution."

Any county committee members who seek to encourage disloyalty by promising not to enforce the rules against bolters are subjecting themselves to removal from the county committee, so that they would not be able in the 1938 primary to give the promised protection to bolters; for other committee members would have been designated to supervise the primary and the ousted committee members would find themselves without a vote.

"One of the leaders of the opposition to the state committee in this district is a man who bitterly opposed the national Democratic ticket in 1928. To forestall his ouster as a member of a county committee at that time, he resigned. He knows that the rules can be, and are, enforced."

County-Wide Mass Meeting Is Called for 2 p. m. Friday

Will Discuss U. S. Senate Seat—May Choose Delegates

WARNING BY ATKINS

Chairman of County Demo Committee Warns Against "Bolting"

A call for a county-wide mass meeting to be held at Hope city hall at 2 p. m. Friday was issued here Monday noon by J. R. Reed of northern Hempstead county.

Mr. Reed said the meeting was for the purpose of discussing the U. S. senate seat left vacant by the death of Joseph T. Robinson.

He said that delegates to the "rank and file" convention at Little Rock August 9 would "probably be chosen."

He declined to elaborate, nor would he say who would be the principal speaker at the meeting Friday afternoon.

Atkins Issues Statement

W. S. Atkins, chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee, warned against "bolting" of the Democratic party in a letter he addressed to eight other chairmen of county committees in the sixth chancery district.

Last week the Hempstead committee went on record as unanimously favoring the adoption of a resolution requesting the state committee to nominate Judge A. P. Steel of Ashdown as the Democratic nominee for chancery judge of the sixth district.

In his letter, Mr. Atkins wrote: "A rule adopted by the Democratic State committee permits county committees to vote on the question of a primary to select a nominee for a district judge, which a voter has occurred since the last general election."

"There is such a vacancy in the Sixth chancery district. The Hempstead County Committee is on record as advocating nomination of Judge A. P. Steel by the state committee."

"Other committees in this chancery district have the privilege of letting their attitude be known, but in this connection it should be remembered that county committees must act at all times in accordance with the will of the party and the laws of the state."

"It would be the duty of the state committee, in considering expressions of county committees with reference to procedure for nominating a candidate for chancery, to eliminate any county committee members who have demonstrated that they do not have a proper respect for their obligations to observe the rules of the party."

"The state convention of 1934 directed the state committee to nominate candidates when a special primary is not practicable. Hence, the state committee could not call a convention to make a nomination."

"It follows then that county committees which go contrary to the official action of the state committee with respect to the vacancy in the office of United States senator are violating Section 4 of the rules of the party. This section provides:

"Any person who shall be guilty of violating any of these rules and regulations shall not be qualified to vote in a Democratic primary, nor shall he be entitled to be a delegate or a committeeman; nor to hold any position in the party organization."

"As a Democrat, I would feel impelled to ask the state committee to hold ineligible any committee member who disregards the party rules, and not to allow such member to have a voice in deciding whether to hold a primary in the Sixth chancery district or to have the state committee make the nomination of a candidate for chancery."

"Any county committee members who seek to encourage disloyalty by promising not to enforce the rules against bolters are subjecting themselves to removal from the county committee, so that they would not be able in the 1938 primary to give the promised protection to bolters; for other committee members would have been designated to supervise the primary and the ousted committee members would find themselves without a vote."

"One of the leaders of the opposition to the state committee in this district is a man who bitterly opposed the national Democratic ticket in 1928. To forestall his ouster as a member of a county committee at that time, he resigned. He knows that the rules can be, and are, enforced."

Protest Against Tax Advantages

Exemption of Sales Tax in Texarkana Studied by D. L. Ford

LITTLE ROCK.—Merchants of Hope, Lewisville and surrounding towns in Hempstead and Lafayette counties have filed protests with the Revenue Department against exemption of the state sales tax on goods purchased at Texarkana by non-residents of the border city, Revenue Commissioner D. L. Ford announced.

The question raised by the protestants is whether the exemptions granted Texarkana by the 1937 sales tax law are applicable in sales where orders for goods are taken in other Arkansas towns. Farm machinery and other heavy equipment purchases were the principal causes of the controversy.

Ford, Wharton Differ

Commissioner Ford said he had reached no decision on the question. "But I am inclined to think the tax should apply on such transactions," he said. "It may take a test suit to decide it. It will penalize business men at Hope, Lewisville and other surrounding towns if citizens there order from Texarkana firms to escape paying the tax."

In Eastern Arkansas many persons buying machinery and heavy equipment are going to Memphis. We are requiring them to pay the tax on each such transaction that we discover."

J. Hugh Wharton, Revenue Department attorney, said he had reached the tentative conclusion that sales made on out-of-town orders at Texarkana were not taxable. Commissioner Ford and Mr. Wharton will continue a study of the subject this week.

Mr. Wharton said that "to require collection of the tax in Texarkana, Ark., would drive merchants across the line into Texas. It is my opinion now that any transaction consummated in Texarkana, Ark., is exempt from the sales tax no matter if the sale is made on an order."

"Requiring collection and the forcing of merchants across the state line would undoubtedly reduce toll bridge revenues and property taxes there. However, we have received protests from Hempstead and Lafayette counties."

Texarkana's Status

State Senator H. M. Barney of Texarkana, who appeared before Commissioner Ford and Mr. Wharton last week to present argument on the subject, contended that merchants of his city now suffer a severe enough penalty because of toll bridges on three sides.

In a brief submitted to the commissioner by Senator Barney and Attorney Frank S. Quinn, it was argued: "The purpose of the exemption clause was to place Arkansas merchants on an equal competitive basis with those in Texarkana, Texas."

"If the residence of the purchaser should be held the determining factor in the application of the sales tax, then the Texas merchant would be further favored, and the discrimination against the Arkansas merchant thus made greater."

"It was to prevent this very patent inequality and discrimination against our own citizens here at the Arkansas-Texas state line that prompted and actuated the legislature in enacting this particular exemption provision of the sales tax law."

Demand Continuation

Another brief was submitted by William B. Smith, Texarkana city attorney, and former Representative Ben Car-

Intensive Warfare Being Planned By Japanese Armies

American Citizens Are Imprisoned Behind Closed Gates

TROOPS ARE MASSING

182 United States Pilots May Fly War Planes for China

PEIPING, China.—(AP)—Japanese armies dominated China's former capital Monday, imprisoning many Americans behind closed gates.

Japan's war planes blasted a path for a deep thrust southward. At Tientsin, white Russians stormed the Soviet embassy. Tientsin was quiet but tense as Japanese troop movements into the hostilities area flooded rail lines.

The Nanking government reported that central Chinese troops were massing on the southern border of Hopeh-Chahar area.

In Tokyo sweeping changes were decreed by the Japanese army, creating four new commanders with extensive China experience, which led to belief that Japan was preparing for extensive warfare against China.

At Luohio, China, a vanguard of Japanese troops were reported to be southwest of Peiping and were apparently nearing the main Chinese concentration area.

May Fly Planes

LOS ANGELES.—(AP)—Mystery, surrounded preparations of 182 American pilots, each with a mechanic or two, to sail soon for China to man combat planes.

The Times quoted Russell L. Hearn, soldier of fortune and former general staff officer with Marshall Chang, the Lin, as telling Dr. Ted Ching, here on a lecture tour, that 182 pilots had signified their willingness to go to China and that each had his own mechanics.

Hearn said he had a report the Chinese central government had 332 planes for which it had no pilots, but declared it a violation of federal law to recruit them here.

"However," Hearn said, "if Americans wish to go to China and then enlist, there's nothing to stop them."

The Spanish War

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—(AP)—Insurgent artillery opened a bombardment on Madrid's outer defenses Monday after driving a spearhead into the Spanish government's lines west of the capital.

Battles were being fought on three fronts.

General Franco's troops pressed hard against the government defenses in the eastern and southern sections of Spain. On the northern front the insurgents were reported defeating an attempt to break their lines.

The Spanish government forces had about a thousand casualties in the Asturias attack, said insurgent reports.

Blow Torch Starts Fire

The Right to Paint Your Own Home

UNION sympathizers, union unsympathizers, and all sorts of folks who just aren't interested particularly in unions, will do well to cast a glance at Cleveland.

For some time the spraying of varnish over newly-painted houses has been almost a daily occurrence. Investigation showed that most of these incidents were traceable to rivalry between two sets of building trades unions.

Distraught inquiries to the daily papers from anxious people who were contemplating a little amateur painting of their own houses brought out this fact:

That for months the Painters' District Council actually had been issuing permits to citizens without interference, provided they could first show that they couldn't afford to hire painters.

Painters' union officials replied that "greed on the part of well-off property owners was causing them to try to avoid paying union wages" by doing the job themselves. It was the painters' union's job to see that such work went to union painters, and this it was trying to do by its permit system.

THAT seems reasonable enough on its face. But it is a mighty dangerous principle, if carried to its logical conclusion.

Suppose you want to adjust the carburetor on the old bus some morning, and find that you can't do it without first applying for permission of the garage-mechanics' union and convincing them that you can't afford to patronize a garage.

Suppose you want to fix up those tricky front steps, and find yourself in similar trouble with the carpenters' union.

Suppose the window-washers' union decided that home windows came under their jurisdiction as well as downtown office-building windows, and that you'd better not wash your own—or else!

Absurd? And yet in any of those cases you would be robbing union men of work they are qualified and ready to do.

Perhaps it is not too much to say that anyone who can afford it ought to throw such work to men to whom it means a living. It is certainly proper for a union to try to get as much of that kind of work for its members as it legitimately can.

BUT there is something else involved here. It is the right of a man to do what he likes with his own. Unions will best serve themselves and their members by remembering those rights.

The right to paint your own house, to decide for yourself whether you can afford to hire painters, is a symbolical, perhaps, of the kind of rights that must be fought for in detail and preserved if we are to have anything worth while left of our diminishing personal liberties.

You may never want to paint your house yourself. Few people do. But everyone ought to be interested in the right to do it. For it is by little infringements, little encroachments like this, always with a reasonable argument behind them, that personal freedom is chipped away. And eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

On Behalf of Babies

TWENTY-TWO children, born in the vicinity of New York City's lower west side health center, are the possessors of silver spoons which bear the city seal. The children were chosen to receive the spoons as souvenirs of the health center's inauguration.

As contrasted with the accepted idea of the child "born with a silver spoon in its mouth," these 22 babies are not necessarily destined for lives of riches and ease.

But, if the precepts of good health, provided by experts at the health center, are faithfully followed by the mothers, these youngsters stand to inherit a blessing which can not be paralleled in cash or property.

For giving new significance to an outworn phrase, but mostly for stimulating the crusade to give a better break to babies, congratulations to the officials who conceived this bright idea.

Beriberi Controlled by Changing Diet to Include Food Containing Vitamin B

In this, the fifth of 11 articles discussing the deficiency diseases and their relation to lack of vitamins in diet, Dr. Morris Fishburn discusses beriberi, its causes and methods of seeking a cure.

(No. 281)
 The first vitamin discovered was vitamin B1. The disease known as beriberi, which results from a shortage of vitamin B1, was described by the Japanese at least 200 B. C.

In 1880, a Japanese medical admiral eliminated the occurrence of the disease from the sailors in the Japanese navy by changing their diets. Beriberi is seldom seen in the United States.

The symptoms of a relative deficiency of vitamin B1 may, however, be rather frequent. In beriberi there are disturbances of motion and of sensation. Fluid collects in the body and the heart acts badly.

Typical beriberi, as it was found in the Japanese, resulted from eating polished rice. Beriberi may, however, develop whenever the diet is a monotonous one, be limited to other grains from which the germ has been removed, such as wheat and corn. It may also occur in people who live largely on diets of white bread, sugar, molasses and oats. When the disease does occur among white peoples, it usually affects the inmates of jails, ships and asylums whose diets may be largely restricted by the environment in which they find themselves.

When there is an insufficient amount of vitamin B1 in the diet or when for any reason the vitamin is not absorbed by the body, the reactions which occur are typical.

When the muscles of the calf of the leg are squeezed they are found to be exceedingly tender. In various portions of the body the skin is without sensation. When the patient squats down, he may be unable to get up without using his hands because of the pain.

It is not, however, a simple matter for the average person to diagnose his own condition because many of these symptoms occur in other diseases of the arthritic type.

Most important in beriberi is to find

Your Children

Select Movies Are Real Aid to Parents—Teach Life.

Should children learn to know the world as it is, selfish, hard, and as often wicked, or continue in their complete faith in people?

Many parents wonder just what to do about it, and so have I wondered in the past.

It is well to know life, and what to beware of. On the other hand, to be constantly suspicious, to lose confidence and trust and perhaps become infected with the sordid view is bad for the young mind.

Yet children, parents admit, must have a defense. They should know human nature and the pitfalls of evil to some extent, as life is life and later they will have to rub shoulders with people as they are. They cannot be kept ignorant forever, and to learn only through personal experience too often costs a price.

A Friend in Need
 I have arrived, rather reluctantly, I'll admit, at a rather astonishing answer. I believe that movies have lifted much of our burden and solved at least part of the problem.

What child can look upon the shows of today and fail to grasp two facts: that there are good and not so good people in the world? That some are weak, others deliberately vicious, and yet a large percentage kind and true. In the end virtue is victorious, of course, which is not always true in real life, but the example is good.

Through hero or heroine worship, children learn some of their most valuable lessons. They learn, too, that there is suffering and cruelty, and that the very best cannot always escape.

or have it easy, regardless of their own worth.

We wonder why our families are so worldly wise today, and are frequently shocked at the children's naive remarks. "Where did Betty learn that?" We ask with startled faces. Perhaps it was something we would never have dreamed of telling her ourselves. And we'd be right about it, too, because there is a difference between hearing a stark truth and watching it tactfully acted in a well-chosen story.

Crime Stories Are Poor Diet
 I do not approve of tiny children going to movies at all. For the younger ones, the show should be carefully selected. Again, there are some pictures that no growing child should see. As for crime shows, the way they are presented now (and you probably don't know how carefully) judges recently have been less inclined to accept them as alibis in delinquency cases. Yet too much crime portrayal is a poor diet for boys in general.

These things aside, I still believe the movies to be valuable in their way. Children are learning facts of life from seeing life. Indeed it relieves us, their parents, of the heavy end of our problem, because not all mothers have courage or diplomacy enough to open young eyes to truth.

The big thing is that children of all ages are absorbing lessons from pictures, learning that creating doesn't pay, and so on. There are still some flaws, and may the movies continue to strive for still higher levels, but we have a lot to think them for today.

HOLLYWOOD

$2,000 a Week, With Sner, Is Rathbone's Rental Price, and He Calls It Villainous

HOLLYWOOD.—If you were to walk up to Basil Rathbone and ask the identity of the worst male heavy on the entire English-speaking screen, he'd say, "I am!"

And the funny thing is, he'd mean it. At least, he'd like to believe it. You'd never get an American movie actor to talk that way about himself. But Englishmen seem to be different. Englishmen take their acting seriously, so seriously that they even grow critical of themselves.

Mr. Rathbone happens to have a sneer. A sneer and a sinister and sardonic mien which photograph more menacingly and hatefully than any others on the screen.

Anyway, because of these things, together with a certain knack for whistling ominous sibilants through his teeth, he receives a larger salary than any villain in Hollywood.

If you wanted to rent Mr. Rathbone, complete with sneer, your whim would cost at least $2,000 a week.

Salary Aves Him
 Of course he appreciates the money which producers insist upon paying him for looking the way he does, and for his supercilious and careful enunciation, yet he believes he does the job very poorly.

"I'm lousy at it," he insists, relishing the Hollywood idiom. "I'm lousy at it because I have no—no courage at all. I'm perhaps the most cowardly actor who ever made himself prominent in films."

"I feel that I'm a very poor villain, and I tell everyone who engages me the same thing. I told Mr. Goldwyn I wasn't worth anywhere near what he is paying me for this 'Marco Polo' thing. All he said was, 'It's my money.'"

In "The Adventures of Marco Polo," Rathbone is Ahmed, prime minister to Kublai Khan and an oily, suave, thoroughly unprincipled scoundrel who plots against the throne.

"Don't get the idea that I scorn the salary they pay me for sneering and making life miserable for everyone in a picture. The fact is, I look with awe upon each check I receive."

"I say, Rathbone, you scoundrel, you are doing very well for the limited talent you have to sell. Maybe you are a villain after all, because you certainly are receiving money under false pretenses."

"But there is a conflict within me. My commercial sense tells me to shut my mouth and begin sneering at the producers when they offer me jobs, and to tell them I'm not getting on—enough. But my artistic instincts rebel against my being carried on in a type of role for which I am neither psychologically nor physically fitted."

"You see, I used to do romantic the life of children by the divorce of their parents. And she does a splendid job of it."

Julia, 10, is the slightly precocious heroine of this modern novel, but it is her pale, taciturn brother, Terry, 12, who will command the sympathy of the readers.

Children of a well-to-do English couple who have been divorced, Julia and Terry are shunted back and forth among the homes of their father and his new wife; their mother and bluff "Uncle" Tom, her new mate; and their grandparents.

Spirited, independent and a good sport, Julia tries to make the best of her new way of living, but the task of acting as a buffer between her neurotic, sensitive brother and his relatively snive of whom understand him, constantly disturbs her.

And as for Terry himself, the bewildering new conditions and the thoughtless taunts of his stepfather cause him to draw deeper into his shell until at last he is a sad metal plight.

All in all, by using Julia's perspective, Mrs. Delafield succeeds in painting a stirring picture of what the separation of parents can mean to children, and of how youngsters can suffer through the lack of understanding elders.

In a gentle way, this author has helped buttress the argument that parents should think twice before leaping into the divorce courts.—G. P.

Prosperity By Quarts

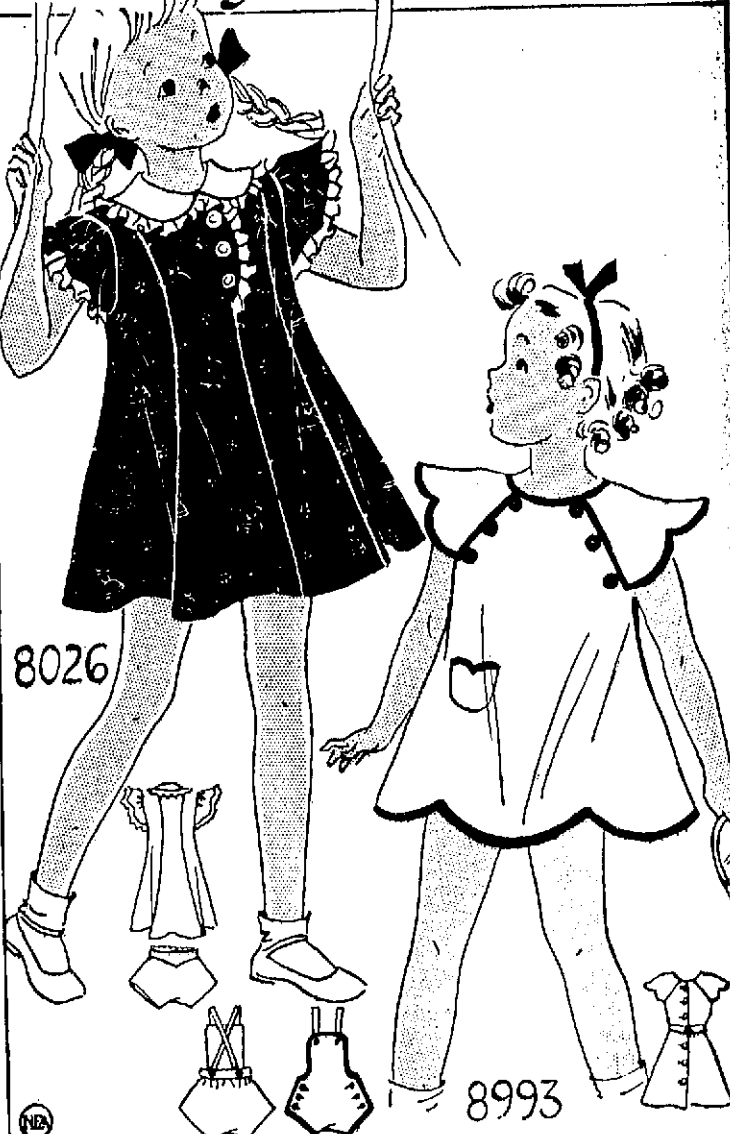

STOCKHOLM.—(AP)—The annual report of the liquor monopoly indicates that Sweden is in a period of rare prosperity. Last year the net income of the monopoly was $3,787,500 against $3,375,000 in 1935. In spite of this increase drunkenness continues to decrease.

Bridgroom Killed

NEW ORLEANS. (AP)—Waldron J. Bowers, 28, a bridegroom of five hours, was knocked from the grasp of his bride and killed Sunday by a hit and run automobile driver as he led her to his home.
Bowers and Miss Elizabeth Fisher, 22, a stenographer, had eloped to Gretna La., across the Mississippi river and had just stepped off a street car when the tragedy occurred.

While there is no known connecting link between the feather of a bird and the scale of a reptile, the development of the two structures is very similar.

STORIES IN STAMPS

MATUSKA OF AUSTRALIA

FACED with the need for more lands and wider opportunities for its people, Great Britain hit upon a novel colonization scheme just 100 years ago, strikingly analogous to Uncle Sam's Matuska settlement in Alaska. Britain tried out this plan in South Australia.
At a time when its land-grant system was proving fatal to emigration in Australia, a plan was evolved exchanging labor for land, and permitting purchase of lands for a small sum.
A tract of 16,000 acres was allotted the first 100 families, while a loan of 200 pounds each was made, by way of orders on merchants, to enable the settlers to purchase necessary equipment.
But the British went even a bit further. No money actually was used in the transactions. The earnings of the settlers and the value created by their labor was represented in the extent and improvement of their lands, the irrigation developed, the stock raised, and the general progress of the community. At the end of 13 years each settler was sufficiently well anchored to work independently thereafter.
So the great South Australia country took its place in the economics of the world—903,000 square miles, rich in gold, copper, agriculture. Today its 500,000 inhabitants thrive in many fields. The stamp below, issued in 1936 marked the centenary of South Australia.

After the Wade Comes the Cleanup; But It's Less Fun, Even for Quints

But when it comes Marie's turn to be scrubbed up and gotten ready to leave, there are squalls. Maybe Emilie isn't as gentle with Marie as Marie had been with Cecile. In fact, it looks as though Emilie is giving that shoe a pretty lusty tug. Or maybe Marie just doesn't want to leave the wading-pool so soon, as who would on a pleasant summer afternoon? Little squalls like this pass quickly.

The summer pleasures of the wading-pool call for a little washing-up before the quints go back to the nursery, especially if sand-pails and shovels figure in the play. Here Marie lends her aid to Cecile, who is reluctant to abandon her sand-pail.

Now it's really time to leave the pool, and, resigned to the fact that all good things must end, Yvonne stands quietly while Cecile gives the back of her neck a last inspection. "Water babies" since their first year, the quints enjoy the wading-pool thoroughly.

Maybe just a little more busy play with the watering cans will set everything right again. This looks like it, with Yvonne and Emilie in the foreground busily making the most satisfying splashes with the little sprinkling cans. That's Marie at left, still turning her back a little humfly, and Annette at right, far too busy with her water can to pay any attention either to photographer or little sisters.

Shirley Released By Doc Prothro

Fred Tauby, New Outfielder, Obtained by Traveler Club

LITTLE ROCK—(P)—Manager Doc Prothro announced Sunday the outright release of Ernest Raeford (Mule) Shirley, veteran first baseman, to make room for Outfielder Fred Tauby, obtained on option Saturday from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Tauby, placed on the active list Sunday, will join the Travelers at New Orleans early this week.

Shirley, signed three weeks ago in a move to add punch to the Peb line-up, had difficulty getting started, hitting .244. With his release young Jack O'Neill took over his first basing duties again.

The Knoxville Smokies took their last look at 1937 at Travelers Field Sunday—and were they glad.

The lads from East Tennessee played eleven games on the Little Rock grounds this season.

Little Rock won all of them.

Meehan Is Expelled

WASHINGTON—(P)—The Securities Commission expelled Michael J. Meehan Monday from three securities exchanges.

The activity of the "boy wizard of Wall Street," said the commission, was designed to induce the public in buying stock of the security.

No Trace of Killer

TOPKA—(P)—Scarcity of clues hampered officers Sunday night in efforts to find three negroes who criminally attacked 20-year-old Marie Kink after killing her escrow, Verne T. Hedrick, 29, as he sat in his motor car at the side of a road near here Friday night.

On Mat Card

Alfred (Lefty) Williams, above, who turned scientific in his last week's match to take the third and deciding fall from Ala Pasha, will return this Tuesday night to meet Paul Murdock, a new comer from Dallas, Texas, in the main event of the South Walnut street wrestling show.

Williams surprised fans last week when he discarded meanie tactics to put on a clean exhibition of grappling in winning over the Indian wrestler.

Murdock, who makes his debut here Tuesday night, is reported to be a first-class mat man. Last week at Texarkana Murdock defeated Buddy Knox of Detroit, who has appeared here a couple of times this season.

Preliminary boxing matches will be announced Tuesday afternoon, as the card had not been completed Monday.

Burglar Is Caught in P. O. Robbery

Bloodhounds Are Used in Search by Howard County Officers

ASHDOWN, Ark.—A white man described by officers as Joseph Harper, 17, wanted by Howard county officers in connection with the post office robbery Saturday night at Shawl, Ark., was arrested about 3 p. m. Sunday by Sheriff Jim Sanderson with the aid of bloodhounds furnished by the Miller county sheriff's department.

Sheriff Sanderson said the man, whose name, he did not remember, was captured in the woods between Ashdown and Little River. He was immediately turned over to Howard county officers who returned him to that county where he will face hearing. He admitted the robbery immediately after his capture.

The amount of the burglary could not be ascertained Sunday night.

The bloodhounds, owned by Policeman Clayton Northcutt, are seven months of age and were trained by Allen Morton, Miller county deputy sheriff.

Deputy Sheriffs Will Greer, Morton and Constable Walter Crowell aided in the search.

his hands and his head to divert his thoughts often leads to insanity. There are many more cases of insanity here than in Korea. We have two advantages in Korea. One is that our colony is to some extent self-supporting.

"Each member of the community has definite daily occupation which keeps them out in the open air much of the time working in their little plots of land and raising their own food and it develops a spirit of rivalry among them as to who can get the best results from his little patch of land. But the greater advantage that we have is religion which is our most powerful ally. In the place of a black despair our lepers have a living hope and an assurance for the hereafter for they reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed to them when their tributes shall be ended.

750 Lepers Cases

"There are 750 cases in our colony, in many of whom the disease has been arrested. Last year 55,000 injections of chaulmoga oil were administered and that is our chief reliance. There are 403 baptized church members and the church in the center of their activities and the beacon of their hope. For more than three thousand years leprosy has been considered the most dreaded of all human ailments, yet within the last thirty years, has been found a panacea and much torture relieved and cases cured if treated in the initial stages.

"Leprosy is like sin and in the Word of God is used as a symbol of it. Both are contagious, mutilating, blinding, found only in man himself and not in animals, is spread by close association, more often begins in the young, is a plague, makes one an outcast, is curable, though there are, at times, relapses.

"While our work has its humanitarian and philanthropic aspects, that is not our ultimate goal. It is only the physical basis upon which we try to render a spiritual service and we are grateful indeed to behold this work of the Lord God prospering in our hands. Leprosy destroys the body as sin does the soul, it hardens the skin as sin does the conscience.

"The Southern Presbyterian work began in Korea forty-five years ago this year with a little pioneer band of seven members of whom only one remains on the field today, Miss Mattie E. Tate, who, thought past the retiring age, yet remains to carry on in the sunset days of her noble life.

"The whole force consists of seventy-four members, a sadly depleted number, as many have been lost through illness, death and other causes. There is no synod but four presbyteries which contain 610 churches, 306 elders, 52 native pastors, 13,475 baptized members and 51,412 in Sabbath schools. There were enrolled in our special Bible classes last year 15,672 students.

Greatly Enjoys Visit

"We have greatly enjoyed having the radio while on furlough which has kept us in touch with many fine programs and has given us great delight. In the Orient we do not get very good things as yet, mostly local things. We could get foreign programs by short wave. Several of the missionaries had radios with short wave reception but just recently the Japanese Government has taken out of every radio set the short wave equipment as they want nothing to come in from the outside except what is duly censored.

"But now I must say my farewell to you. We are not really separated—only out of sight because the world is round, and we are on the other side of it, and we cannot see in a semi-circle. However,

"There is a place where spirits blend. Where friends holds fellowship with friend at the place of business of the merchant when the final assent is given.

"When we asunder part. It gives us inward pair. But we shall still be joined in heart.

"And hope to meet again."

"We are leaving Mission Court and will spend a fortnight at Montreat renewing the ties with many good friends, and then a fortnight with my parents in Columbus, Ark. My dear Dad is now 94 years old and this may be our last meeting here below. Then on to San Francisco where we are to sail on the Japanese steamer "Talyo Maru" on August 21.

"I cannot speak too highly of Mission Court as an ideal place to spend a furlough. The good people of Richmond have treated us royally. We spent our last furlough here and have already bespoken a place for 1944 when we come on our next furlough. Three cheers for the fine women of Virginia and North Carolina, who have made such a haven possible!

Miss Anna McQueen and Mrs. Eugene Bell will join us at San Francisco and our address there will be: Care of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, SS Co., SS "Talyo Maru" sailing August 21.

ter contending that:

"An Arkansas resident, living, say, at Ashdown, can purchase a tractor in Texarkana, Texas, have it delivered to his residence and be free from tax because the transaction is in interstate commerce. We feel sure the exemption clause was meant to allow Texarkana, Ark., merchants to compete on such sales and was not meant to limit competition merely to residents of Texarkana, Texas.

"There is nothing in the statute which would indicate that a Texas merchant should be permitted to deliver but that an Arkansas merchant should not be permitted to deliver without subjecting his sales to the sales tax.

"Where preliminary negotiations to a sale are entered into by correspondence or otherwise, the contract of sale and the transfer of property is deemed to be made at the place of business of the merchant when the final assent is given.

"Where the order is taken by an agent, the place of sale is deemed to be where the seller has his place of business and accepts the order."

Pluto's name was considered appropriate for two reasons. Besides honoring Percival Lowell, the name seemed fitting because Pluto was a god of the outer darkness, and this newly discovered planet circles the sun far out beyond the other major planets.
